

BARANGAY HISTORY

Long time ago, the first name of Dimasalang Sur is Balangkare. Sometimes it is called Talento, since majority of the land here is owned by Family Talento. To other people the place is called “Mag-asawang Mangga”, since two mango trees are planted in this place. Time has passed and the people here decided to change the name of sitio Sarangaya and sitio Balangkare to a common name. And through the motion of Benigno Arellano, the place should be named Dimasalang (cannot be broken). It is taken from the idea that the word of God should not be broken or “DI MASALANG”. The motion was then ratified by the majority. From then on they called the place Dimasalang. The ratification was done under the term of the then mayor Lucio Aquino.

Time has changed and since a big number of people dwell in the place, the residents decided to divide the place into two barrios. The northern part being Dimasalang Norte and the southern part is Dimasalang Sur. The division was done during the reign of Mayor Romeo F. Maliwat.

Until now, the place is called Dimasalang Sur.
